

Court Security and Prisoner Transportation Program Review

Salutations,

As you may know, the Ministry of the Solicitor General of Ontario (ministry) has commissioned a review of programs that support the delivery of court security and prisoner transportation across the province, including the Court Security and Prisoner Transportation (CSPT) Transfer Payment (TP) Program. The ministry has contracted Goss Gilroy Inc. (GGI) to conduct this review. The objectives of the exercise are to provide an evidence-based assessment of the effectiveness, efficiency, relevance and sustainability of the Court Security and Prisoner Transportation program, and identify options and recommendations for improvements and efficiencies.

As part of the review, GGI is circulating a questionnaire to Police Chiefs and OPP Detachment Commanders, including yours, to solicit detailed information about how court security and prisoner transportation are operationalized, what the main challenges are and what could be improved.

GGI also wants to offer all Chairs of Police Service Boards in Ontario the opportunity to provide input into this exercise. If you would like to contribute, please provide your feedback via the online form provided below.

We would appreciate receiving your comments by December 10.

Your responses will be kept strictly confidential and managed in accordance with the relevant access to information and privacy legislation. Personal identifiers will not be used in any reports.

If you have any questions about the review, please contact Brian Bourns (bourns@maclarenmc.ca), Project Manager of the GGI team, or Sara Cowan (Sara.Cowan@ontario.ca) at the Ministry of the Solicitor General of Ontario.

Thank you for your time,
