

Manager's Report Thursday March 10th 2022

Everything has been quiet this last month, what with the shut down in January, the cold in February, and no Tai Chi this session, but it is slowly picking up. Everyone, of course, is anxious to get rid of the masks and people are forgetting more often to pull them up after coffee break time.

The wood shop is busy, now going 4 nights a week with the ladies, although a few are feeling more confident and coming in the daytime as well.

Sue Bowcock and I decorated for St. Patrick's Day, and we will be having a party on the 17th with some games, food and entertainment. We had a lot of gingerbread houses donated to us, so Sue, Irene and Janet have been decorating them for special days (Valentine's, St. Paddy's, and next it will be Easter.)

I have someone coming in to teach computer skills one on one in the next couple of weeks, she will also give some calligraphy classes.

All in all it is going good. I have decided that I will leave the proof of vaccine on the books for now at least until the numbers come down here in our area.
